Biography

Ms Geraldine Tan-Ho holds a Masters of Social Science in Professional Counselling and has years of experience in the field of death, dying and bereavement. A passionate advocate for quality of life and quality of death, Geraldine has immersed in community work for empowering social change. As a Counsellor in Singapore's biggest paediatric palliative home care team, she had developed standards of excellence in palliative care and bereavement support for children and young adults who died due to chronic degenerative illness as well as their families. Currently, Geraldine is Senior Counsellor and Research Associate at Nanyang Technological University Singapore. She is also the founder and Executive Director of LifeLAB Institute, which strives to abolish the taboo of death and encourage meaningful dialogue on life and mortality, and serves as Honorary Mentor with the Star PALS (Paediatric Advanced Life Support) team in HCA Hospice Care Singapore.
