Professor Richard Harding
Professor of Palliative Care
Cicely Saunders Institute King's College London
Director of Global Programmes and Partnerships and Board Member
World Hospice Palliative Care Alliance

Professor Richard Harding is Professor of Palliative Care at the Cicely Saunders Institute King's College London, Director of Global Programmes and Partnerships, and Board Member of the World Hospice Palliative Care Alliance. He is a member of the World Health Organisation's palliative care technical working group. He has expertise in the development and validation of outcome measures for people with life-limiting conditions, and their use on routine care to drive up quality. He has a particular interest in global health, with a program of international work developing partnerships, local research projects and capacity building to ensure that locally appropriate and high quality palliative care is globally available.
