

End-of-Life Care Training for Social Work Students

Hong Kong is facing a growing demand for end-of-life care services in the community due to rapidly ageing population. This imposes great challenges for social workers across different service settings. In order to equip our social work students with basic end-of-life care knowledge and skills, we are inviting the social work students in tertiary institutes in Hong Kong to participate in a designated course organised by the Jockey Club End-of-Life Community Care Project (JCECC).
